The Manamala Shore. New York and the Riviera

TERO temperature and sharp-edged winds here; --first-flowers and vernal breezes at Nice and San Remo. Here, furs and ulsters and frost-tinted faces; -there Spring gowns and perhaps parasóls.

The greatest costume show that the world sees is in progress now on the Riviera. The styles that you will wear next Spring and Summer are being worn and inspected and criticised there to-day. And there also are our representatives, all eyes and taste and memory.

The Riviera influences, -it does not dictate. Your own say-so is the final verdict. The gown that makes the most profound rensation in the Kursaal is not necessarily the one you would choose to wear yourself. Yet from this costume and that,from a Francis fancy here and a Laferriere idea there, taking one gown and toning its colors and another's color scheme applied to a different gown, -so come the American styles through Wanamaker's.

Meanwhile, and pending the arrival of the Imported Gowns, whose view-days will be later announced, we show the world's best in another line,-tailor-made costumes. New York has no debt to the Riviera for these,-in this line she teaches the world. We are showing the first and finest procurable.

Women's Handkerchiefs at Half

Would you think a "pin-hole" in the handkerchief would bring down its price fifty per cent.? Would you think that a waver of a hundredth of an inch from a straight line in the stitching would make a 25c. handkerchief sell for 12 1/2 c.?

It's true, though, and here are the handkerchiefs, four hundred dozen of them on the main aisle tables this morning. They are 25c. handkerchiefs, and we call them "imperfect," but when you see them you will be divided between surprise at the trifling nature of the imperfections, and admiration of the keenness of the eye that discovered them.

All kinds, all 25c. goods and (of course) all linen,-

Twelve-and-a-Half Cents.

The very best that Some of the last season could New Suits show is only a bald beginning when compared with these magnificent specimens of tailoring. The time has long since passed when our rigid requirements lifted the "ready-to-wear" costume out of the ranks of the scorned. Looking at these superb productions one wonders if further improvement is possible.

You have learned to know the Wanamaker costumes well. You have not learned the best about them, however, until you have seen these. Frankly, we have never shown so good before.

A strong point in our costumes is that they are exclusively ours, and you need not fear duplication.

Not expensive, either:-
